

My daughter's bus driver, Larry MacQuown of Henry Clay High School, went above and beyond the call of duty when he realized that girls on the bus were being harassed by some of their male peers. Not only did he reprimand the offenders, but he made sure that parents were aware of the problem and that the young girls knew the appropriate way to handle such unwelcome behavior. He took extra time to address the negative behavior proactively and to make sure that the girls on his bus felt safe in every way. It would have been easy for him to ignore such a difficult problem and pretend he didn't hear the comments, but instead he put a lot of effort and concern into making sure his bus was a safe environment for all students. As a parent, I truly appreciate knowing that such a conscientious person is taking care of my daughter on her daily bus ride.

-- Submitted by Kristina Stollger, parent