

As the Early Start students were beginning the new school year, a parent called the office. While Lynn Kennedy Green was talking with her, she heard beeping in the background and asked what it was. The parent told her that she is critically ill and that her IV machine was beeping. The parent needed to pick up a harness from the Transportation Department in order for her child to ride the bus. She was going to have to wait until someone from her family, who did not live in Lexington, could come and pick it up. Lynn went to the bus garage and picked up the harness, and she and her husband delivered it to the parent. The parent was tearfully appreciative of what Lynn did for her.
