

It was the first day of school, 5 p.m., and bus 458 was still not here at Winburn Middle School. The driver of bus 870 was coming to turn around in our parking lot and noticed my students and me standing in front of the school. She stopped the bus and asked why we were there. I explained the situation, and she radioed the garage and took a busload of students home after she had finished her route. I can't thank her enough for taking the extra time. She was a lifesaver. Yes, bus 458 did finally arrive – there was some kind of mix-up at the elementaries. But please thank the driver of bus 870 for taking our students home.
