

Fundraiser honors memory of Southern Middle student

The Technology Student Association at Southern Middle School sponsored a “penny war” during the last week of October and raised $1,048.91 for the American Cancer Society in memory of 14-year-old Brittany Williams, an eighth-grader at the school who recently lost her battle with cancer.

There was much sadness in August when students learned that one of their beloved classmates had passed away. Brittany had been diagnosed with cancer for a second time and died after an 18-month battle.

Though she is no longer at Southern, Brittany is still having an impact on the school, teachers and classmates said.
