

Fall institute for parents will focus on math, science

Parents and guardians interested in learning more about how to help improve their children's schools are invited to apply for a special Commonwealth Institute for Parent Leadership (CIPL) focused on science, technology, engineering and mathematics.

The institute, which will be conducted Sept. 17-18, Oct. 22-23 and Nov. 19-20 in Louisville, will provide leadership training and support for parents to advocate for improved science and math education in their schools. This session will be implemented in partnership with the Carol Martin Gatton Academy of Mathematics and Science and The Center for Gifted Studies at Western Kentucky University.

The cost of the program – instruction, supplies, meals and lodging – is covered by a grant from the J. Graham Brown Foundation to the Prichard Committee. Applications are now being accepted from across the state; class size is limited to 30 parents. To apply or get more information, visit www.cipl.org or call Lou Ann Cavenee-Ramos at (859) 233-9849, ext. 231.

CIPL, entering its 12th year of nationally acclaimed parent training, is an arm of the Prichard Committee for Academic Excellence.
