

On a rushed morning of KCCT testing, Amanda Ginn took time out from her quality-control work at the warehouse to hand-deliver a test booklet to Jessie Clark Middle School to replace a damaged booklet. She arrived in time for the student to resume testing with her class, relieving anxiety for both the student and me, the building assessment coordinator! This is just one example of the many times Amanda has gone above and beyond the call of duty to help harried BACs out of a difficult situation. We are lucky to have her in our assessment office!
